CLASS PROPHECY

"STOP it! Stop it! It's awful," the stage director screamed, as he pulled his hair and paced up and down the aisle of the theatre.

The seventh rehearsal of Act II of "Ronald", a musical comedy, depicting the life of a modern boy, was interrupted again for the sixth time. A large group of extras had been collected to perform as pupils, and thus contribute to the reality of a schoolroom scene.

"They won't put a bit of effort or reality in it! The show is absolutely hopeless," exclaimed the director.

"Aren't there some local high school boys and girls who could help us?" I suggested.

"Naw! I've asked every school here!"

"What about our old class at Tech High? Couldn't we get its members here? They would 'put it over big,'" offered my wife, Anita, who was my leading lady.

"Mr. Vidor, we could get our old senior class together in about two weeks," I replied eagerly, "and I'll promise you, they'll have plenty of pep."

"You can? Well, get them here," he said, almost desperately.

Our task was more difficult than we had anticipated, but we realized that this musical comedy must be a success. We refreshed our memories, and soon had written down the names of the thirty-two members of the class. What a job to get them together! The task would employ both night and day!

Nevertheless, we found that our new undertaking was unusually interesting, as, in doing so, we succeeded in learning what each of our old classmates was doing. I do not wish to annoy you by relating the trouble and misfortune we met in trying to get them together. However, I believe you will be interested in knowing the information I uncovered in this unique task.

Two of our old classmates, Lou Barbour and Vaneva Keever, were a great asset, indeed, to our chorus, as they were already great theatrical stars.

Eloise Marvin could not come as she was a basketball coach, and her team was playing some important championship games that week.

Our old friend, Mildred Greene, is a minister's wife, although she still teaches kindergarten. She remained at home, as her husband disapproved of such performances.

Martha McCall arrived on time in her own "Spirit of Charlotte", a little aeroplane in which she had won many endurance prizes. Helen Osborne, having cancelled a concert tour as a diseuse, came with Martha.

As this was not the baseball season, Jack Plummer, a wealthy baseball manager, was able to attend the practices.

Kenneth Ingle could not accept our invitation as he had entered an important race at a motorcycle exposition.

Evelyn Horton was unable to secure anyone to fill her position as Head Nurse at the Presbyterian Hospital of Charlotte, so it was impossible for her to come.

Evelyn Troutman and Eddie Lucas made a successful trip from Hollywood, where Evelyn is Charlie Chaplin's leading lady, and Eddie is a full-fledged star of the Paramount Studio.

We found that Chloie Conder was the secretary, and Beulah Armstrong the matron, of a self-established Orphan's Home. Their duties were so pressing that they were unable to participate in our undertaking.

John and Hazel Rosich lived in New York City, so they rode to practice each day in a taxi driven by Gertrude Walsh. Gertrude was driving a taxi to collect enough funds to publish her first novel, "Rock Hill."

Thelma Helms and Bessie King came together, as they worked for "The New York Herald." Thelma was an advertising manager, and Bessie, a sensational reporter.

Ernest Hart was unable to attend, as he was deep in work on a mechanism which would cause the disappearance of wrinkles. As Mae Hopkins was opening her new beauty parlor to help increase the coming sales of Ernest's invention, it was impossible for her to come.

Helen Daniels, having won recognition as an expert horse-woman, and having recently entered a horse show, could not be there either.

Nixon Caldwell and Annie Heintz arrived soon enough. How interesting it was to learn that Nixon was a wealthy plumber and that Annie was his efficient stenographer!

Clarence Rogers came and brought his band, whose fame was rivaling that of Sousa's.

Beulah Smith was away in college working on her M.A. degree. She had already signed up for a position in the same college when she completed her work there.

Elizabeth Parlier happened to be in New York City posing for a Pond's Cream advertisement, which was being painted by William Pittman. They came over each day.

Estelle Biggers and Elizabeth King were unable to attend. They were both in Paris. Estelle was appearing as "The Toast of Broadway" and Elizabeth, a very experienced news reporter, was acting as her publicity agent.

Lee Mullis was conducting an exploring party on a flight to the South Pole, so, of course, it was impossible for him to be there.

Everyone was so happy and thrilled! What a gala occasion this was! The musical comedy marked the culmination of the season's best; but, better yet, a re-union of the dear old Senior Class of '30.

CLASS POEM

Our happy school days have ended,
And with heavy hearts we go.
To forget, may be easy with some,
But with us it will not be so.

We'll keep you always in our thoughts,
Dear teachers, friends, and Tech.
'Tis always first of thee we'll think,
When the best we recollect.

Farewell, old mates, teachers, and all
Who have made our happiness last.
May your joys be as great in the future
As ours have been in the past.

EVELYN TROUTMAN

CLASS SONG

(Tune: "I'll Always Be In Love With You").

How sad our hearts are today,
For the day now has come
When we must go away.
Sunshine has turned into rain,
And all of our gladness
Has turned into sadness—

CHORUS

But though we now must part
We'll keep you in our heart
We'l' ne'er forget you, dear Tech High.
We're out on Life's Highway
To greet another day,
But we'll always keep you in our hearts.
We can't do anymore,
We've tried so hard to please,
But let us thank you for
Such tender memories.
We wish you joy untold
Forever in your fold,
We'll always keep you in our hearts.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA
County of Mecklenburg.

Before entering upon the perilous Journey of Life, we, the members of the Senior Class of 1930, solemnly realizing the end of our existence at Tech High School, and desiring that such valuable possessions as we do now cherish, may descend upon their rightful heirs, make and publish a decree, this our Last Will and Testament.

SECTION I.

To the class of 1931, we bequeath the following important items:

(1) The dignity that has been ours for one long year.
(2) The "A's" which we failed to get, but thought we deserved.
(3) The privilege of being shining examples to our underclassmen.

SECTION II.

Bequests by Individuals

Beulah Armstrong wills her love for dissecting crayfish and earthworms in Biology to Inez Armstrong.

Estelle Biggers wills her beauty clay to Pattie Lee Simpson and Rachel Garrison.

Lou Barbour wills her "perpetual giggle" to Margaret Roscoe, and her flaming hair to Neal Herms.

Chloie Conder wills her ability to do the right thing at the wrong time to Sara Helms.

Helen Daniels wills her ability to attend school regularly to Louise Taylor.

Mildred Greene wills her "school uniform" to Pauline Bradley.

Annie Heintz wills her knack of remaining unseen and unheard in class to Helen Smith.

Thelma Helms wills her "hyena laugh" to Blanche Dellinger.

Mae Hopkins wills her love for diamond rings to Vernell Wolfe.

Evelyn Horton wills a family heirloom, a very attractive scarf, to Holt Goodman.

Anita Keever wills her witty ways to Sara Webb, and a foot of her height to Ruby Butler.

Vaneva Keever wills her unruly curls to Winifred Barbour.

Bessie King wills her interest in the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company to Jessie Chambers.

Martha McCall wills her "active tongue" to Cleo Wallace.

Eloise Marvin wills her "lady-like manners" to Edna Smith.

Eddie Lucas wills her highly-sought-for position as Editor-in-Chief of the "Technique" to anyone who thinks he is capable of doing the work. She suggests David Wentz or Madolyn Hattrick for the position.

Hazel McManus wills her popularity with the opposite sex to Bernice Williams.

Helen Osborne wills her "winning ways" to Alice Towler. She desires that her "and ers", so painfully noticeable in English talks, go to Ruth Griffin.

Elizabeth Parlier wills her "attractive ways" to Catherine Martin.

Beulah Smith wills her quiet and timid ways to Louise Honeycutt.

Jack Plummer wills his "handsomeness" to two needy ones, John Craig and Frank Skinner.

Evelyn Troutman wills her false tooth to John Cullingford. She wills her superfluous number of "wise-cracks" to Ruth Kennedy, requesting that she waste none on deaf ears.

Gertrude Walsh wills her ability to be tardy four mornings each week to Beulah Yandle, with the hope that she will use those seventh period study halls to better advantage than she did.

Nixon Caldwell wills his football ability to Draper Skidmore.

Ernest Hart wills his monkey wrench to Harvey Garrison.

Kenneth Ingle wills his ability to enter a new school and make friends easily to Elizabeth Howell.

Lee Mullis leaves his finger waves to Aaron Berryhill.

Dick Parlier bequeaths his ability to originate nicknames to John Barbour. His surplus flesh he leaves to Jewell Orr.

William Pittman leaves his unfaithful alarm clock, which has failed to wake him several times in class, to Irvin Cammer.

Clarence Rogers wills his ability to "crank" the moving-picture machine to Frank Drake and Everett Welborn.

John Rosich wills his weakness for the fairer sex to Walton Austin. His very polite manners he wills to James Conder.

SECTION III.

"En Masse."

To Miss Kittles, we bequeath a class that is not so deaf to her voice.

To Miss Kinder and Mr. Schmitt, we will a basketball team that will come to practice without special notice, or without having to have a messenger run each player out each afternoon.

To Miss Inglis, we leave all of our carbon copies of letters, old notebooks, pencil stubs, and other such debris found in our files.

To Miss Clegg, we leave our obedience in following the traffic laws.

To Miss Meinung, Miss Myers, Miss Russell, Miss McDuffie, and Mr. Hoon, we leave our thanks for the many ways in which they have helped to make this last year our very best one.

To Miss Ransom, we leave all of our inspirations, talents, and ability for writing themes and short stories.

To Miss Manship, we leave our house plans with the hope that she may use one of them for her very own.

To Miss Adams, Miss Smith, and Mr. Richardson, we leave the sincere hope that they may recover fully from the many "jolts and jars" received during their first year of teaching.

To Mr. Littell, we leave our appreciation for the lovely lettering which he has done on our typing awards.

Lastly, do we appoint our beloved Principal, Mr. F. T. Selby, to execute this, our Last Will and Testament.

In testimony whereof, we, the Senior Class of 1930, have to this Last Will and Testament set our hand and seal, this the twenty-eighth day of February, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirty.

(Signed) SENIOR CLASS OF '30.
ELIZABETH KING, Testator.

SENIOR CALENDAR

September 2—Hurrah! The thrill of being a Senior!

September 17—Miss Ransom's birthday. Say! Did we surprise her with a party? Well, if you could have seen how surprised she was, you wouldn't ask such a question.

September 23—Elected Class Officers. The class pulled an old-fashioned joke over on Dick Parlier, by electing him president during his absence.

September 23—Gave Mr. Selby a leather memorandum book for a birthday gift. We did not want him to forget the class of 1930.

October 31—Hallowe'en Party. The Seniors, we must admit, look spooky enough without the hideous costumes they wore that night.

November 10—Elected Student Council Representatives. A very serious occasion!

November 13—Candy Pulling. A night for aprons and sticky hands!

November 14—Elected Annual Staff. Wheeeee! What a hot race! Of all the voting and re-voting—this was the greatest!

December 27—Christmas Party. Gee! But the girls had a time keeping from under the mistletoe.

January 21—Decided on rings. A day full of discussion and argument.

February 4—Pictures for annual were taken. One of those eventful days in history.

February 5—Selected motto, flower, and colors—even if it did take two committees to decide on the motto.

February 14—Miss Kittles surprised us with a delightful Valentine Party. One of those times when everyone had a heart, or stole one!

February 19—Voted on Who's Who for the TECHNIQUE. Almost as exciting as a ball game!

February 20—Dedicated TECHNIQUE. To whom? Our Senior Advisor, of course.

February 21—"Miss Cherryblossom", a Japanese Operetta, given by Glee Clubs. Many leading parts were played by the Seniors.

February 25—Rings came. Hurrah! Large rings, middle sized rings, and small rings.

March 1—Annual goes to press. What a grand and glorious day!

April 2—Interesting rumors about Junior-Senior banquet. Can't give exact date, but we're all excited!

Vaneva: Ticket to New York, please.
Ticket Agent: Do you wish to go by Buffalo?
Vaneva: Certainly not. By train, if you please.

Mrs. Biggers: Every time you are naughty I get another grey hair.
Estelle: My word! You must have been a terror. Look at Grandma.

Ernest and his ancient car chugged painfully up to the gate at the races. The gatekeeper, demanding the usual fee for automobiles, called, "A dollar for the car." Ernest looked up with a smile of relief and said, "Sold."

THE TRUE ATMOSPHERE OF SCHOOL AND COLLEGE

WE endeavor, in producing school annuals, to render a helpful and constructive service directed toward enabling a student staff to get out a representative, distinctive book within their budget.

In connection with our new and modern printing plant we maintain a large Art and Service Department where page borders, cover designs, division pages, and complete decorative and illustrative motifs are created and worked out.
